

YeahWrite

where your words matter

NaNoDoMore 2018

Ready to Do More with your November? So are we. And like you, we do things on the go. And on the stop. And maybe at least one of our editors has a complicated system of sticky notes reminding them to do things or telling them what things have been done. If you're like them, here's a printable form to carry around with you. It's also fillable, if you like keeping your pdfs on the computer—just click the number for each entry as you complete it, to check it off. This is the form with space limitations, so we've simplified the task descriptions a bit. Don't forget to read the full description on the web page!

[1] Submit a post to a YeahWrite grid.	[11] Share a link to a story or essay that you love on social media.	[21] Write a story in under 100 words.
[2] Submit to a YeahWrite grid you've never been on (or the one you submit to less).	[12] Write a story based on someone else's character or world. GET PERMISSION, or use works already in the public domain	[22] Do NaNoWriMo or NaBloPoMo.
[3] Get a friend who's never written for YeahWrite onto a grid.	[13] Update your author page with a biography and list of publications.	[23] Nominate someone's work for a best-of roundup.
[4] Submit writing somewhere that's not YeahWrite.	[14] Organize a reading circle or book club. Choose the first reading.	[24] Host a writing challenge.
[5] Submit writing to a market that pays.	[15] Beta read for someone.	[25] Write an essay you've been afraid to write because of what your family might say.
[6] Enter a writing competition.	[16] Revise an old story.	[26] Write a poem in a form you've never tried.
[7] Go to a poetry reading.	[17] Write a book review on your own blog or website	[27] Find one interesting anthology that's accepting submissions in December and post about it in the coffeehouse.
[8] Go to a book signing.	[18] Write a story in a POV you don't usually use.	[28] Write your own "Best of 2018" roundup.
[9] Write a short story or longform essay between 1,000-5,000 words.	[19] Host a reading.	[29] Review a book on Goodreads/Amazon/etc.
[10] Write a story over 10,000 words.	[20] Co-write a story.	[30] Buy a book for a child (or a school or prison library).